

Hampden Sports Clinic and the Scottish FA are pleased to announce that their new first aid e-learning course is live and ready for booking.

The e-learning course is pre-requisite of the full first aid course and is not a first aid qualification in itself.

Candidates must have an account on the Scottish FA COMET system and enrol on the online course at a cost of £25 per person. Following successful completion of the e-learning course, candidates are eligible to book onto a 1-day practical course in order to obtain a first aid qualification.

The cost of the practical course is £50 per person, however thanks to The Scottish Football Partnership & Trust, SYFA officials can get in touch at this address to secure their place for the practical course free of charge: olivia @ Scottish Youth FA – syfafirstaid@scottish-football.com

Please only get in touch after you have completed the online component. Please do not book directly with the sports clinic as this will cost you £50 which cannot be refunded.

Please note that both components must be completed for officials looking to become SYFA team first aiders.

There are several courses running throughout Scotland over the coming months.

Please note these are first come first served and there is limited availability on each course.

A list of all our other approved first aid suppliers can be found on our website.
